About Me

My name is Carrie and I live in New York. I work as a tech marketer. I'm from RI but have lived in VT, Spain, Boston and the Washington, DC area. I moved to NYC to be closer to family.

I grew up in a small but very close-knit family. We regularly visited grandparents in NYC and Cape Cod. When my sister and I were in grade school my parents became foster parents - eight babies stayed with us for varying lengths of time. Being part of a foster family (and an adoptee myself) and being surrounded by an abundance of love, solidified my desire to be a mom one day.

I am an Aunt to four nieces and nephews that I see regularly. My sister is an excellent mom and has even taken on the role of surrogate big sister to my NYC friends. She's on standby to be the best aunt!

Right now it's me and my pup, a golden retriever lab mix who loves cheese and peanut butter (she's a foodie like me), playing ball in the park and hiking in the woods.

In my free time I love exploring the city's food and culture (so walkable!), catching a sports game (Go Red Sox!), cooking a delicious meal for friends (I love cooking), or getting lost in a good book. I travel at least once a year outside the country and prioritize spending quality time with friends and loved ones. My decision to adopt as a single parent may not be considered to be traditional, but my family is full of strong and independent, non-traditional women and I'm proud to carry on this tradition.

My Family & Friends

Family and friends are super important to me.

Home Sweet Home

Although I'll always consider myself to be a Rhode Islander, I now call Manhattan home. It's a wonderful and culturally diverse borough in New York City. I own an apartment in a pre-war building that has a cozy rooftop deck and a back patio. Both are perfect for unwinding. A number of families with small children live in the building. In my neighborhood families are a common sight and there are lots of things to do.

In My Free Time

My hobbies are a mix of old favorites and new adventures. As a kid, I devoured books, played a bunch of sports, and loved getting creative with art projects thanks to my artistic parents. As an adult, although I still read a lot, I've replaced sports with walking. I walk everywhere and luckily the city I live in is super walkable. I've always loved cooking and traveling – exploring new cultures and tasting different cuisines is amazing! I've been to most US states, dabbled in Central and South America, have been to Australia twice and have traveled extensively in Europe. My favorite countries are France, Spain and Italy.

Thank you.

Thank you for checking out my profile!

I can't wait to grow my family.
